NIOSH SAFETY BULLETIN

“Safety Advisory: Manual Adjustment of Automatic Slack Adjusters May Contribute to Unexpected Brake Failure on Automotive Fire Apparatus

NIOSH recommends that all fire departments operating fire apparatus equipped with automatic slack adjusters (ASAs) immediately take the following actions to reduce the risk of fire fighters being injured in an apparatus crash due to brake failure:

- Ensure that ASAs are not manually adjusted.
- Establish procedures to ensure maintenance on fire apparatus is conducted as recommended in NFPA 1911 Standard for the Inspection, Maintenance, Testing, and Retirement of In-Service Automotive Fire Apparatus.

- Ensure maintenance is only performed by qualified technicians who meet NFPA 1071 Standard for Emergency Vehicle Technician Professional Qualifications.”

The bulletin also states “When an ASA is found to be out of adjustment, it signifies the existence of a larger braking system problem that needs correction. Manual adjustment of ASAs should only be done by qualified technicians during installation or when absolutely necessary to move the apparatus to a repair facility.”

This safety bulletin is in response to the LODD of Boston FD Lt Kelley last January. The accident happen when Ladder 26, coming back from a medical call, started down a steep hill and the vehicle was unable to stop. At the bottom of the hill the vehicle crossed a busy street, went through a brick wall and then crashed into a room full of children in a residential building. Fortunately none of the children were seriously injured. In the ensuing investigation--by Boston's DA, the fire dept board of inquiry, a union-hired special consultant and NIOSH-- there were several brake issues found with Ladder 26. One of the concerns the investigators found was that multiple brake adjustments had been done, which as the NIOSH ASA bulletin says “May Contribute to Unexpected Brake Failure.” The lack of qualified technicians and of vehicle maintenance, as reported by an outside audit of the fleet's maintenance program, contributed to this accident. Another contributing factor, as cited in the DA's report, was the fact that incorrect brake components were installed during one of the brake jobs by an outside vendor. If NFPA 1911 and 1071 had been implemented, and qualified EVT and ASE Certified technicians had been hired, accidents like this might have been avoided.

A few thoughts on lessons that could be learned from the January 2009 accident.

- perform 1911 brake tests after brake work
  - perform at a minimum twice per year brake inspections
  - check the technician certifications of outside vendors
  - fully test and inspect units coming back from outside vendors
  - document all repairs and tests
  - implement reporting system from crews to maintenance department
  - implement 1911 PM inspections and out of service criteria
